Sub: Implementation of Pay Roll Processing Sub-module of HRMS-IFMS for Grant-in-aid Colleges

The Government of West Bengal has decided to switch over to online Human Resource Management System (HRMS) from the manual process practiced across the state. In this respect the pay-roll sub module of HRMS has already been rolled out vide G.O. No. 8531-F(Y) dated 18/12/2015 and by using this facility DDOs are already drawing the pay bill of State Government employees whose salary is drawn from the detailed head 01-Salaries.

Now, the sub module for payment of salary to the employees of Grant-in-aid Colleges has been developed and deployed in the live server of IFMS . At present, the facility of generation of salary bill along with the schedules and challans for employees in grant-in-aid colleges (whose salary is paid out of 31'-Grant-in-aid-01 – Salary grant) is available for the DDOs in HRMS modules.

The Governor is hereby pleased to decide that the Grant- in-aid salary bills for employees of Grant-in-aid Colleges will mandatorily be prepared and submitted through HRMS-IFMS from 01/04/2017. In this connection all pre-requisites for drawal of grant-in-aid salary bills through HRMS module must be completed within 31/03/2017.

Guidelines for preparation of grant-in-aid bills are available under the "Guidelines" section of www.wbifms.gov.in portal.

1. d Home Coming is the story of Phatik Chakravorty. He was the chief of the boys of the village always looking for mischief. One day he planned the shifting of a log lying on the mudflat of the river waiting to be shaped into a mast for a boat. He along with his companions wanted to shift the log from its place and roll it away. The owners of the log would be angry and they would enjoy the fun.

Makhan, Phatik's younger brother came there and sat on the log presumably for stopping the boys to carry out their plan. But the boys rolled the log with Makhan on it and consequently Makhan fell down on the earth. The boy cried with delight but Phatik was frightened. This shows that he is not thoroughly wicked. Probably he was afraid that Makhan had serious injuries or he feared his mother's rebukes.

Phatik sat down on a boat on the river bank and began to chew a piece of grass. An elderly stranger came and asked him the direction to the Chakrabortis house. Phatik carelessly pointed a direction which could properly understand. On second enquiry, Phatik replied brusquely to the man to go and find out. This is another example of Phatik's mischievous pranks. The stranger enquired about the house of Phatik.

Phatik was wild and wayward. He did not go to school and did not learn his lessons. He was ill-treated.

of his brothers often prompted his mothers to chide and beat him. ~~Inded~~ Indeed his mothers's patience was taxed to the extreme because ~~Phatik~~ Phatik could not be controlled. So when Phatik's uncle came to their house and proposed to take him to Calcutta and look after his education, the mother readily agreed. Phatik was also eager to go to Calcutta for he heard about its many attractions.

But in Calcutta, Phatik soon found himself an outsider. His aunt considered him an additional burden on the family. In school he was regularly caned by the teachers for failing to answer the questions. He lost his book, the aunt rebuked him rudely. He was a child of Nature in the city its cramped atmosphere with big house and walls which shut out the open sky, and the neglect in the aunt's house and oppression in the school his spirit was smothered. Gradually he developed headache and fever. He feared that he would be worse nuisance to his aunt and so he fled. When the police brought him he was delirious to his aunt and so he fled. When the police brought him he was delirious and gradually he was on the brink of death. He craved for going to his country home and now he went to his true home, i.e. heaven. His death is redolent of Pathetic Charam.

Phalok was a sensitive boy - sensitive to Nature's bounty. The broad fields and rivers have natural attraction for the boy. He was lazy.

and wild in the worldly sense, but he was really in tune with the Spirit of Nature. In the city he was out of peace. The Oppressive atmosphere everywhere stifled his Spirit. He was born and brought up in Nature, his mind yearned to go back there. Nature was his true home in the city he found himself shut out from Nature, his home. In death, he got back to his house. His holiday from the city was granted.

3-a. Sita is a beautiful elegiac poem which shows Toru Dutt's interest in the legends and puranas of India. The poem has an autobiographical element. The poetess used to hear stories of the puranas from her mother with her Sisters Anu and brother Abju. Toru Dutt relive her childhood her gaiety and sympathy when they heard the stories of Indian mythology. She remembers those happy days with warm affection. They used to get emotionally involved in the sad fate of Sita who was exiled who was kept in captivity by Ravana and who brought up her children in the forest of Valmiki. Again, she had to face the trial of proving her faithfulness. Sita broke and wept. Children were also moved to tears.

The poem begins with vivid nature description. Valmiki's forest is vividly depicted. The poetess evokes the pastoral scene with creepers, flowers, tall trees, bright lake, white swans, dancing peacock and herds of deer and to the smoke rising from the hermit's altars. Valmiki was the hermit who became the poet. The emotional involvement of the children with the sad fate of Sita is beautifully evoked in the line

"She weeps for lo! at every tear she sheds
Tears from the three pairs of young eyes fall again"

The poem is also a tribute to the genius of Toru's mother for story telling:

"It is an old, old story and the lay which has evoked and Sita from the past
Is by a mother sung"

Valmiki's hermitage stands before our eyes, but even more vivid and haunting is Sita in her sorrows, and the three children weeping because Sita is weeping. The last two lines are a poignant elegy on the early death of Abju and Aru. The poetess had written the poem ~~feelings~~ feelingly and evoked a scene and emotion which leave an indelible imprint on the mind. Interrogative ~~sentence~~ sentences interposed enhance the suspense and interest of story-telling words are meticulously chosen. Expression like wide-open eyes, darkened room, poet anchorite, young eyes, young heads evoked sad Sita melts the picture of the thickness of the forest Darkened room creates the atmosphere of gloominess which is a fitting background of the sad story of Sita. Young eyes, young heads suggest the impressionable minds of young man and young woman. The last two lines are poignantly elegiac because the brothers and sisters of the poetess met early death.

The poem of 22 lines is neatly structured. The first part of eleven lines depicts the natural scenery of the forest of the poetess's anchorite. The suspense is created by the question But who is the fair lady? Her whole tale of suffering and misfortunes is suggested in the line

— "Not in vain / she weeps." Her sorrow

Touches the hearts of others. The lines are uniformly of the syllables. Written in Iambic tetrameters, the poem has a haunting music of pathos.

2.c A.K. Ramanujan in his poem. A river speaks of the city of Madurai where the river Vaigai runs through the city. It remains dry except during the rainy season when it has water in it. Madurai is famous for temples and poets. The river is so dry in summer that even the sandy river bed is seen. It has so little water that even straw and human's hair block the blood gates. bridges with contain the repairs work in patches here and there. The wet stones under the waters look like sleeping crocodiles in the waters. The dry stones look like water buffaloes relaxing in the sun.

The two similes used here are very simple. Crocodile and water buffaloes are both huge animals that live under water. When there is enough water in the rivers crocodiles are seen in waters and they are wet with water. Similarly, buffaloes come out of waters and back in the sunshine is in the land adjoining the waters.

The two images of water animals are signifi- Significant. Wet stones and
